

Connecting with Parents through Engagement and Effective Communication

WHERE THE
BEST
ARE TRAINED

AIC'S FACULTY DO MORE THAN 'TEACH'. THEY LISTEN, PROVOKE AND CHALLENGE

Future Proof Learning

Course Overview

Many teachers put in so much of their energy into teaching every day such that they find communicating and connecting with the parents time-consuming and even trying. Teachers do know the importance to engage and communicate with parents as all parents want to feel assured that their little beloved ones are happy in school and getting the best out of school. And that is what teachers want too! While teachers and parents have the same priorities, they may not always see eye to eye how best to support the children. And when things go wrong – even a little bit wrong - it is at times hard to deliver the correct message to the parents. This one-day workshop examines the challenges teachers face and explores how to build open and honest communication with the parents to establish mutual trust and rapport that benefit the children, the parents as well as the school.

Learning Outcomes

The aims of the course are to help participants to:

- Understand the need and importance of building good relationship and rapport with the parents
- Know how to communicate more effectively with parents on school daily routine to lay the foundation for long-term teacher-parent partnership
- Recognize the importance of selection of appropriate communication tools
- Enhance self-confidence in managing and communicating sensitive issues or concerns to parents
